Rohan Sood

Manager

Rohan joined MDD Forensic Accountants in 2025. He is a Manager at the firm's New York office.
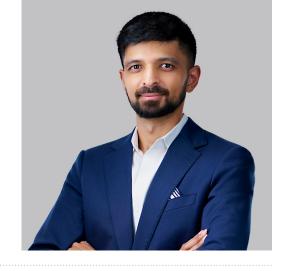

Prior to joining MDD, Rohan gained experience as a manager in forensic accounting at a global firm, where he specialized in the management of complex liability matters, including the development of exposure models and other decision-making tools. This includes matters involving asbestos, hazardous waste, sexual abuse and molestation, opioids, concussive injuries, PFAS/AFFF (business interruption and property damage), lead, benzene, diacetyl, medical devices, and pharmaceuticals.

Rohan focuses on the quantification of economic damages for matters related to liability losses, product liability & product recall, lost profits, insurance defense, contingent bi & extra expense, business interruption, environmental damages and toxic tort and quantitative & analytics practice.

He has been engaged across a wide range of industries, including food services, oil & gas, retail, wholesale, manufacturing, professional services & automotive.

Rohan has provided litigation support to clients and assisted in the preparation for expert witness testimony. He has also presented seminars and CLE training related to liability and building exposure models/decision trees.

Rohan graduated from Rutgers University with a Bachelor of Science degree, with a major in accounting and a minor in management information systems.
